

Intellectual Property

Hausfeld represents individuals and companies in asserting claims of infringement of their intellectual property rights. Hausfeld's lawyers combine deep complex litigation skills, including state, federal and international court and mediation experience, with technical knowledge to provide intellectual property owners with vigorous pursuit of their rights. The firm often offers contingency fee or alternative billing arrangements, sharing the risks of litigation and aligning our interests with our clients: we win when our clients win. Hausfeld welcomes the opportunity to conduct due diligence of prospective claims without obligation to retain the firm.

Hausfeld lawyers have achieved notable success in representing clients in enforcing their intellectual property rights. These cases include patent, trade secret, trademark, "right of publicity," and copyright cases.