

Sports and Entertainment

Hausfeld represents businesses, athletes, musicians, and other artists and entertainers in a wide array of matters in the sports and entertainment field. These issues include complex antitrust claims, breach of contract, royalty disputes, licensing issues, copyright disputes, personal injury, labor relations, sensitive negotiations, and rights of publicity and likeness claims. The firm combines deep complex litigation skills and experience in federal, state, and international courts, arbitration, and mediation to provide clients with a full spectrum of advice and options.

Attorneys from the firm have been quoted and cited in numerous publications on sports and entertainment law, including in the New York Times, USA Today, Sports Illustrated, Forbes, ESPN, Bloomberg news, Billboard, SportsBusiness Journal, and Yahoo! Sports, and have been interviewed on NPR Radio, CBS Radio, and in numerous other forums. Additionally, Hausfeld's attorneys are frequent panelists on sports and entertainment litigation topics at symposia and conferences all over the world.

Hausfeld's cases have been the subject of intense public interest, and numerous articles and court filings are located at the links below in the "Cases and Current Investigations" section. We employ a wide variety of alternative billing arrangements, including taking many cases on full or partial contingency, to ensure that our clients' needs are met.